General use

Mask: Allows the wearer to see while snorkelling and protects the eyes from coming into direct contact with water.

Snorkel: Allows the snorkeller to breathe on the surface of the water whilst keeping their head submerged.

To use the snorkel properly, the head must be kept in a horizontal position and the snorkel must project upwards in a vertical position. Only use the snorkel in water.

Wearing the mask (Fig. A)

Check the mask fits properly by pressing it against your face (without using the headband) and create a vacuum by breathing in gently through the nose. The mask should remain attached to your face by itself as you hold your breath.

- Hold the mask in front of your face with two hands. The mask should be in your palms with the headband over the back of your hands.
- Now carefully pull the headband around the back of your head.

Note: Ensure that the headband is at an angle of approx. 45° to your crown when it sits on your forehead. This is to prevent the ingress of water.

- Adjust the positioning of the headband if required.

Adjusting the headband (Fig. B)

Adjust the headband so that it sits comfortably and does not slip.

- Pull the two ends of the headband evenly until the mask sits securely and comfortably.
- To loosen the mask, press the two adjustment buttons with your thumb and index finger and pull the headband back.

Removing water

Take the mask in both hands and tip it forwards so that the water can escape. If any water enters the snorkel in spite of the splash guard, you can remove this with a short, sharp blow into the mouthpiece (Fig. C).

Removing the mask

Slide your thumbs underneath the headband on both sides of your head. Run your thumbs around to the back of your head and pull the headband away from the back of your head and above your forehead.

Using corrective lenses

If you would like to incorporate corrective lenses into your mask, consult your local retailer or optician.

Securing the snorkel

Hook the snorkel fast
